NEW KENSINGTON HIGH SCHOOL

1900-1950

NEW KENSINGTON, PENNSYLVANIA

For this school, there is foretold by the good and the wise, a glorious future; she will grow, she will become great in the highest sense of the word.

Foreword

There are as many ways of looking at the past as there are those who look at it. How many memories fifty years must contain! For each of us who have lived through part or all of the past fifty years, there are many memories—learning to drive a car . . . our first trip to Pittsburgh . . . an airplane ride . . . the 1936 St. Patrick's Day flood . . . the first radio in our home . . . television . . . our best friend or brother leaving for service in the Army . . . the Armistice of the First World War . . . atom bomb.

For you for whom this book has been prepared, there are other memories—your first day at Ken Hi . . . the basketball and football games . . . the Junior Prom . . . your teachers . . . your graduation. Some of you are far from Ken Hi in time and place. For others it is just a few blocks away and "only yesterday." But for all of you it is a common memory. Perhaps you were one of a graduation class that numbered less than ten, or perhaps there were so many in your class that you never got to know them all. Perhaps you prepared for college at Ken Hi, or perhaps you were taught a trade. Maybe the most important thing you learned here was sportsmanship or good citizenship. All of these together make Ken Hi a memory to you . . . and to help you recall these memories, this book has been prepared.

Ken Hi means many things to many people. It is more than a building, a faculty, laboratory equipment, and books to be studied. During the past fifty years more than fifteen thousand students have come to Ken Hi and more than 8,000 of them have been awarded the coveted diploma of graduation. This fifty year period has been packed with many changes. We have seen two world wars . . . a calamitous depression and years of prosperity . . . we have seen automobiles and airplanes become a necessary part of everyday life . . . we have seen movies take the high school crowd out of the home for the evening and television bring them back in . . . we have seen the high school diploma become a first requisite for most every job. Some of the changes have been bad; most have been good. We lump them together and call them progress. We believe that Ken Hi has progressed with the rest of the world, as shown by the pictures and stories in this book.

We are proud of every one of you who has been a part of Ken Hi . . . If you are a laborer, a business man, a teacher, a lawyer, a minister, a doctor, an executive, or the mother of prospective Ken Hi students, we want you to be as proud of Ken Hi as Ken Hi is proud of you. This book is about you and your Ken Hi. When you look at the pictures, you'll say: "Did I ever look like this!" . . . "I just can't remember his name!" . . . and "Didn't we have fun in those days?" Yes, this is a proud and happy backward glance at Ken Hi. There is no ending to our "history" for the story of Ken Hi is not yet completed. And even while we are "looking back," Ken Hi is going on and tomorrow's memories are being made.

ANNUAL DINNER OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS—December, 1949: Clockwise—Dr. E. T. Chapman, Oren Herrington, A. F. Daughenbaugh, F. W. McKean, attorney; C. H. Vaughan, Jr., James Patterson, Jr., Frank E. Kronkoski, C. W. Keller, Joseph S. DeSimone, Ralph M. Little, Jr., Veronica Mazur, secretary; E. H. Blackburn. Dr. C. G. Vonderheid, Jr., absent from the picture.

Dr. E. T. Chapman has been associated with the New Kensington schools since 1916 and has been superintendent of schools since 1924.

Mr. H. B. Weaver came to New Kensington in 1924 and has been principal of the high school since that time.

Mr. J. A. Miller, as principal of the vocational school since 1916, has supervised the training of many boys of New Kensington for various trades.

Ken Hi Through Fifty Years

In May, 1899, approximately twenty-five boys and girls completed the subjects prescribed for the last year's course of New Kensington Public Schools. The Board of Directors, believing that some provision for additional schooling should be made for these boys and girls, recommended that a three year high school be offered. Later this was changed to a two year course. When school opened in September of that year (1899), sixteen boys and girls reported to the Walnut Street building to begin their high school work. One small, dark and inconvenient room was assigned to the group. Seats were crowded together and blackboard space was limited to one slate.

Mr. Harry Piper, who had been elected to teach the high school subjects as well as to teach music to part of the grade school pupils, welcomed the sixteen boys and girls. Under his direction, New Kensington High School was launched. At the end of about six weeks, Mr. Piper announced that he would be leaving soon due to the fact that he had been assigned to the pastorate of a nearby Methodist Church. Miss Mary Ashe was elected to succeed him and in a very short time assumed the principalship of the New Kensington High School.

She was greatly interested in the newly organized high school and was instrumental in having it properly recognized by the State Department of Education at Harrisburg. The Board of Directors approved her efforts and before the close of the school year 1899-1900 New Kensington had a regularly organized and established high school with an academic course of two years. This two-year course included as required subjects — history, civics, Latin, mathematics (algebra and plane geometry), English (grammar, composition, English and American literature). In addition, regular classes in music were held. Friday afternoons were set aside for special programs of debates, public speaking, and music.

When school opened in September, 1900, just three boys and three girls of the original group returned to continue their high school work. They were given a larger room but they had to share it with the new freshmen. The seniors, as they were now known, were all planning to go to college and made good use of the opportunities offered them during this last year in high school.

As the end of the school term drew near, plans were made for Baccalaureate services and Commencement exercises. The former were held in the Methodist Church on Ridge Avenue, with the president of Mt. Union College delivering the address. The Commencement exercises were held in the Trinity Evangelical and Reformed Church on Constitution Boulevard. Special music had a place on the Commencement program and each of the six graduates delivered an oration upon some subject very important to himself. The class occupied seats on the platform along with the Board of Directors. Flowers and palms decked the church and the class colors, red and black, were in evidence. Very shortly after this these colors were adopted as the school colors.

In August, 1901, Miss Ashe resigned her position in New Kensington to accept one elsewhere. She was succeeded by Miss Marie Smiley, a graduate of Wilson College, who taught for the next two years. In June, 1903, Mr. A. D. Horton was elected supervising principal of the New Kensington schools to succeed Mr. Bird Hunnell. Early in 1904 the Board of Directors voted that "a three year course of study be adopted and that any student eligible be allowed to graduate at the end of two years, if he so desired." As a result, more students were attracted to the high school and more teachers were needed.

By 1905, due to increased enrollment, larger quarters than those offered at the Walnut Street building were necessary. Arrangements were made to rent rooms on the second floor of what was known as the Flynn Building on Ninth Street. This was a temporary arrangement since the Board of Directors had purchased lots in the eight-hundred block on Fourth Avenue on which they planned to erect the first high school building. This building was dedicated in 1908 and is at present known as the Fourth Avenue Junior High School.

The same year a four year course of study was presented to the School Board and adopted by them. This course offered several electives in addition to the required subjects and thirty-two points were necessary for graduation. Each point represented a half year's work in one branch. New names appeared on the faculty roll. Mr. Horton, the principal, resigned to accept a position in Wellsville, Ohio, and Mr. Crow served as high school principal. The students lost some of their conservatism and began to turn their attention to athletics, caps and gowns for graduation, alumni receptions at Commencement time, Junior-Senior receptions, and closing picnics at McLaughlin's Grove.

The high school moved in 1908 from the rooms on Ninth Street to the new building on Fourth Avenue. As the population of New Kensington increased due to the arrival of new industries, the school enrollment also increased. The Board of Directors was soon preparing plans for a larger building on Ridge Avenue. According to one record, "it decided to build a modern structure in the residential section, and as near as possible to what would likely be the center of population in the future."

By this time New Kensington High School had advanced in several lines of activity. Under supervision of the faculty, literary societies were organized and considerable rivalry existed between the different groups. The Sigma Psi Society has left a record of one debate on the question: Resolved that the United States should annex no more territory. On April 12, 1912, the high school produced a play "The Three Chauffeurs" at the Columbus Theater. This play was written by Mr. Dannels, the principal, and directed by the teachers. According to reports, "long before it was time for the curtain to rise the theater was taxed to capacity" and the play was "exciting from start to finish."

Athletics, particularly football, were becoming very popular. In 1912 the high school team was coached by George Peckham, who was physical director at the local Y. M. C. A. at the time. Ken Hi that year played nine games, closing the season by defeating Parnassus, 8-5. According to the "Juniclan," the greatest of all great events in New Kensington High School athletics was the first inter-class track and field meet held at the Valley race track on May 10, 1913. The seniors captured the meet, much to the disappointment of the sophomores.

With the completion of the building on Ridge Avenue in 1914, many opportunities for expansion were opened. There was room for seventh and eighth grade students as well as for the regular high school students. Out of this grew a junior high school and a senior high school, each embracing three years' work. The Vocational School and the Home Economics Department were established in 1915. The commercial course was added and in connection with this course the Students' Savings Bank was opened. In the commercial course, Spanish was included in the curriculum and students were permitted to substitute it for Latin. All students were urged to make use of the bank by opening checking and savings accounts.

In 1915, Mr. Dannels resigned and Mr. Berlin Empfield became high school principal. Mr. Empfield was elected Superintendent of Schools in 1918 and served in that capacity until 1924. Upon his resignation, Dr. E. T. Chapman was elected Superintendent of Schools in New Kensington and Mr. H. B. Weaver, Principal of the High School.

The new building not only made possible an expanded curriculum, but also with its new auditorium-gymnasium opened the way to various forms of entertainment, such as minstrel shows and "Fi-Fi of the Toy Shop," a spectacular musical extravaganza. It also made possible the development of fine basketball teams, girls' as well as boys'. While the girls had neither health nor gym classes, they did play basketball. Many girls participated in games because there were class teams as well as the varsity. It was the custom for the girls' varsity team (who played boys' rules) to play the preliminary game wherever the boys' team was playing.

The high school made a good record in the sale of Liberty Bonds during the years of World War I. The sale of these bonds was constantly brought to the attention of the students by speakers from our own town or other towns of Westmoreland County. There was a county contest as well as a home town contest for the sale of bonds. Interest in bond buying was increased when the school saw six members of the Class of 1917 march off in uniform.

Dismissal at noon and at the close of the afternoon session was very different from that of the present time. Instead of dashing out to get a place on the bus or to meet one's pal at the drug store, all students returned to their section rooms and prepared to leave at the same time. The students lined up two abreast and, without talking, marched in orderly lines through the halls, down the steps, and out the front doors. All this time they were keeping step to the music played by the orchestra, which occupied the space at one side of the steps leading to the third floor. The orchestra usually consisted of a pianist, a drummer and a couple of violinists.

By the early 1920's the student body had grown to such a size that it was necessary to add a wing to the building. In this new wing was located a number of new classrooms. Here also was a new gymnasium, center of much of the athletic and social life of the next twenty-five years.

In 1933, the Vocational School moved to the Fourth Avenue building and its quarters on the first floor were transformed into classrooms. The "portable," added for extra space sometime previous to the building of the new wing, was found to be indispensable. Familiar to many students as "the chicken coop," it served as classrooms until 1949 when it was torn down. The large room on the fourth floor designed as a gymnasium in 1913 went through a number of changes in later years. Equipped with a stage, it was used for assemblies. Later, partitions were installed and it was used for three or four classes. Still later, the partitions were removed and the room became one very large study hall, with the students facing the hills across the river. Now in 1950, with new lights and new paint, pictures on the walls, a small platform on the south side of the room, "401" is indeed a satisfactory place to study.

Other changes in the building have been in the construction of offices. Dr. Chapman's office includes the small room once used as a kind of library. New offices have been built for the dean of girls and for the principal of the Vocational School on the second floor and for the guidance and health departments on the third floor. The library now occupies the large room on the third floor originally designed for a library. A new band-room was constructed in part of the balcony of the gymnasium in 1949.

Major improvements have been made in the home economics department. While the rooms remain the same, beautiful modern equipment has been installed for both cooking and sewing. The cafeteria also has been modernized until it bears little resemblance to the original or even to that of a few years ago.

When the seventh, eighth and ninth grades were moved to the Fourth Avenue Junior High School in the fall of 1948, the Vocational School was moved back to the Ridge Avenue building for part of its work. It now occupies the third floor rooms opposite the gymnasium. The distributive education classes moved the same year from the portable, to the room formerly used for mechanical drawing.

As the student body grew in size and as the buildings changed, it was quite natural that social and athletic activities should change also. The old literary societies have given way to numerous clubs. Glee Clubs have grown into choirs and choruses. The band, still playing peppy music, has added eye-appeal with drum-majors and majorettes. Class parties have outgrown the family parlors and become class dances in the gym. Junior-Senior banquets, having outgrown serving space in New Kensington, have become the Junior-Senior prom.

From small beginnings in athletics have come Ken Hi's championship teams. Parnassus and Ken Hi were natural rivals for years. With the addition of the present gymnasium, a series of Allegheny-Kiski Valley tournaments were possible. Consolidation ended the rivalry between the two high schools and increased the possibilities for participation in more sports for more boys. Although football and basketball have remained the major sports, many boys have enjoyed baseball, track and cross country, tennis, and golf.

Even in summer the Ridge Avenue building is not without activity. The first Summer School was organized in 1935 and, except for several years during the war, has functioned ever since. In the earlier years the enrollment each year was above one hundred. In the last three years it has averaged well over three hundred.

Doubtless every school has some activities or customs which do not fall under any such heading as club or athletics, but every student remembers them fondly or otherwise. For some years Ken Hi has had what is known as the "Failure List." This is a list of students who are reported by the teachers as rating an "E" in one or more subjects. The list is posted on the bulletin board at the end of each three-week period between report cards. The failure list bears some relationship to another institution at Ken Hi. It is called "After School Study Hall" officially, but in the spirit of the times it is better known to all Ken Hi students as "D. T." At the present time it is held for one period immediately after school in Room 401. Tardiness, failures, misconduct and incomplete grades are paths that lead the unwary to "D. T."

The new public address system installed in 1948 has eliminated the hit and miss system of putting announcements on the office clock for the faculty to remember or on the blackboards where they were inevitably erased too soon.

Ken Hi in 1950 is not so much a changed school as it is a school grown up. The important features—a good curriculum, a high standard of scholarship, co-operation of administration, faculty, and students—have remained the same. Less important features have changed—class colors, songs, and rings have given way to the Red and Black, the Alma Mater and Ken Hi's standard ring. The school has outgrown the old spirit of class rivalry and has developed in its stead a much finer school spirit.

Development of Courses of Study

No phase of the high school program is more important than the courses of study or the curricula of the school. These courses of study are determined partly by the Department of Public Instruction and partly by the needs of the community served by the high school. All courses offered, however, must be approved by the department. The expanding curricula of Ken Hi over the fifty-year period is evidence that the board of directors, superintendents, principals, and faculty have been ever alert to the increasing needs of the boys and girls of New Kensington. No longer are the high school courses planned primarily for those who expect to attend college, but they are designed to prepare also the student who goes directly from high school into some gainful occupation or preparation for that occupation.

In the early years the subjects were largely of the so-called classical or academic type. Now subjects pertaining to practical, every day living are also included so that we find subjects ranging from Latin to driving appearing in the students' handbook.

From 1901 to 1903 English, including American literature, English literature, and rhetoric; music, civics, general history, Latin, algebra and plane geometry were the subjects of instruction. From 1903 to 1905 Virgil, physical geography, Roman history and Greek history were added. In 1905-1906 an enriched program offered new courses in etymology, English history, ancient history, German, higher arithmetic, chemistry and Cicero. Botany, modern history, higher algebra and solid geometry made their appearance in the years from 1907 to 1909.

The school year 1909-1910 marks the introduction of the first commercial subject—book-keeping and auditing—also zoology and mechanical engineering. From 1910 to 1912 English composition, English classics, French, biology, trigonometry, and American history became a part of Ken Hi's enlarging subject field. Recognition of the commercial department came in 1914-1915. Commercial arithmetic was a new commercial subject; manual training and drawing were added to the other courses. Domestic science was another course on the practical side. The Vocational School was recognized by the Board of Directors as a separate department in May, 1915. Eight subjects—history of literature, trade arithmetic, elementary science, household chemistry, commercial geography, commercial law, typewriting, and shorthand—enlarged the curricula in 1915-1916. In the next two years trade algebra, trade history, sanitation, and economics joined the ever-growing subject list.

The industrial character of New Kensington is evidenced by the large number of trade subjects added in 1918-1919, including trade drafting, machine shop, patternmaking, English, economics and geometry. In that same year commercial English, commercial penmanship, general science, thermo dynamics, industrial chemistry, advanced chemistry, cabinet making, millinery, and cooking appeared on the schedule.

These subjects were followed the next year by commercial spelling, use of dictaphone and adding machine, sociology and household arts. From 1920 to 1922 vocational civics, Spanish I and II, French II, problems of democracy (replacing economics and sociology) and the Smith-Hughes Home Economics course became a part of the high school curricula.

High school music came to the fore in 1923-1924 when chorus, band, orchestra, music history, and music appreciation gave students musically inclined an opportunity to develop their talents. The following year art, journalism, public speaking and junior business training were included.

By this time, 1925, there were four courses in the high school curricula—classical, general, commercial and home economics. In the Vocational School, machine practice, patternmaking, drafting and electricity were the courses.

Few changes in the courses of study are noted until 1942 when the influence of World War II is seen in the introduction of a pre-flight course for those students interested in the air corps. These years also show our growing interest in our neighboring countries, for geography became a popular high school subject. Ken Hi can well boast of being one of the first high schools in the state to present courses in the geography of the Americas and global geography. Agriculture again became an elective subject.

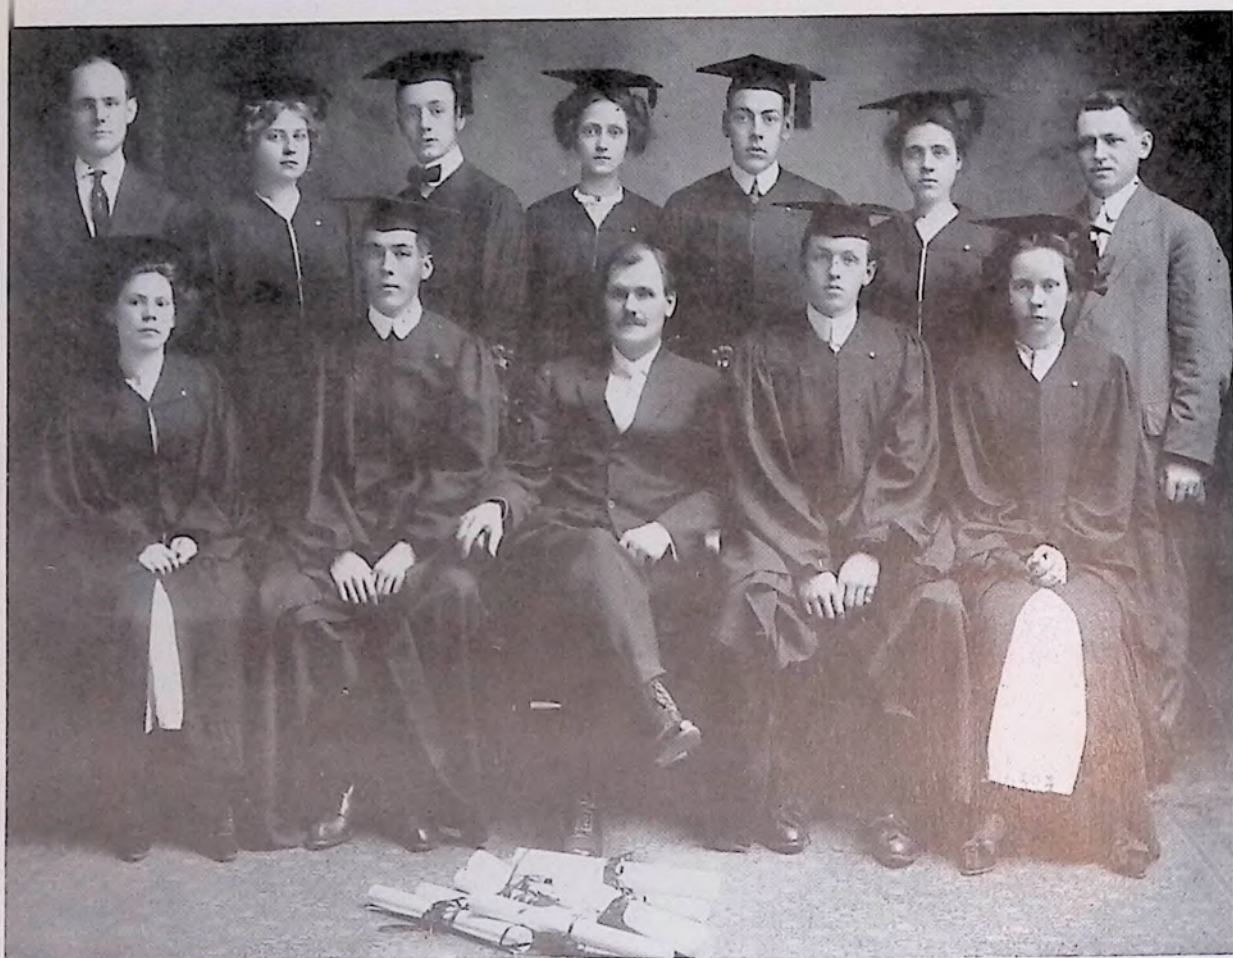

To meet a real need in the community's business life, the high school introduced the distributive education course which a limited number of students may elect in their senior year. Students following this plan attend classes in the morning and work as sales persons in local stores in the afternoon, thereby earning while learning. All classroom work is taught by the same instructor who also keeps in close touch with students at work and with store managers and supervisors.

A familiar sight since the fall of 1948 is the student training car used in the driving course now taught as an elective for one semester to students who are learning to drive. Including theory, mechanics, traffic rules, and safe driving practice, this is one of the most valuable and practical courses in the curricula.

At the present time, 1949-50, high school courses number five, the classical, general, commercial, industrial, and distributive education. We believe Ken Hi through the years has kept in tune with the times by offering its students many and varied courses relating to community needs.

In the first quarter of the century pupil progress in high school subjects was graded in percentages and reported to parents on report cards in the same way. Such grading is very difficult for the teacher and often misunderstood by the student. In the school year 1924-1925, this percentage system was changed to the letter system. According to their achievement, students in a class may be divided into five groups for purposes of ranking or grading, indicated in Ken Hi by the first five letters of the alphabet—four passing groups and one failing.

Another evidence of progress in New Kensington High School is the admission of the high school to the Middle States Association of Secondary Schools and Colleges. Admission was requested in 1927 and admission granted in 1928 when the school was able to present evidence of having attained certain standards, such as courses of study and educational advantages for the student in relation to the character of the community, a wholesome school environment, adequate equipment, well qualified teachers, a carefully planned student program and a guidance program. To retain membership in this association the school must be evaluated every ten years. In February, 1943, New Kensington High School was evaluated by a committee of teachers and administrators from other schools. Much work in preparation for this evaluation was required of administrators, teachers, and secretaries but New Kensington can be proud of the result of the evaluation in the various areas. A very superior rating was awarded in staff and administration areas; a superior rating in curriculum, instruction, educational outcomes, pupil activity, library, and guidance areas.

Even though New Kensington is an industrial town, "going to college" after high school graduation is the next step in preparation for adult living for about twenty percent of Ken Hi's graduates. Ken Hi students are admitted without examination to all colleges and universities which do not require all applicants to take the college board examinations.

Vocational School

The New Kensington School District was one of the pioneers in Vocational Education, being the second school district in Western Pennsylvania to make vocational courses available to high school students. Operating under the Pennsylvania Vocational Law, courses in machine shop practice and patternmaking were started in 1915. In 1917 the Smith-Hughes Vocational Law was enacted. Ken Hi qualified and from that time to the present has conducted vocational courses to meet the provisions of the Smith-Hughes law and all the later companion laws affecting vocational education. The major provision in the law is that students must be given fifty per cent shop work and twenty-five per cent academic subjects. When first organized, the faculty was as follows: J. W. Hosner, director; Joseph Hourigan, machine shop instructor; Edwin McHose, patternmaking instructor; Harry Wilson, mathematics instructor, and several part time teachers in other subjects.

During the early years 2½ Horse Power and 5 Horse Power water-cooled Marine type engines were manufactured in the school shops. All the machining, fitting, and testing of the engines were done by students. Patterns for all cast iron and bronze parts were also made in the school shop. Rough castings were secured locally. The engine, a two cycle type, when completed and installed was a beautiful piece of work. It was sturdy, compact, and powerful, being able to propel an ordinary size boat ten miles per hour — a fast speed in those days. Five were shipped to New Zealand, twelve to Toronto, and some were used in small industries locally. The market declined when this type of engine gave way to the outboard motor. None have been made since 1924. Since it is recommended that a product or products of commercial value be made as school shop projects, various types of work have, depending on demand, been included in the shop curriculum. For some years and at present, machine tools are being made for use in the school shop and for owners of small shops. More recently such projects included band saws, bench lathes, shapers, vises, and smaller tools, many of which are still in use in the school shops.

During the first World War, in the years 1916 and 1917, production of war equipment was carried on extensively. The school was open twenty-four hours a day making hand grenade gauges, boring bars, and various other tools on a sub-contract basis for a large manufacturing concern.

In 1933 the vocational work was moved from the High School building to the Second Ward building. Moving and setting up machines in the new location were done by teachers and students. The stage in the auditorium was enlarged and classrooms were remodeled to suit shop conditions. In this year trade drafting was offered as a vocational course. In 1937 expansion of opportunities was thought advisable and electricity was added to the curriculum. From 1937 to the present, trade courses in machine shop practice, patternmaking, drafting, and electricity were made possible for students desiring trade training. Students for all day classes are selected according to the rating made on intelligence, aptitude, and mathematics tests.

Since 1918, when the first vocational group was graduated, graduates number fourteen hundred and ten. A large majority of them have responsible positions in industry, business, and the professions. A running survey which has been kept up-to-date shows that 72 per cent of the vocational graduates are working at the trade studied in school or are in some closely allied occupation where their vocational education functions. Briefly, some of the positions held are: industrial publishers, superintendents of plants, shop foremen, teachers, and specialized workers, such as machinists, toolmakers, designers, draftsmen, patternmakers, electricians, and estimators. A large number of graduates have their own industrial plants. While the first concern in vocational education is training for industry, it is possible for the student to obtain higher education upon completion of a vocational course. Vocational students are admitted to Pennsylvania State teachers' colleges and to many other colleges where foreign language is not a requirement.

In addition to regular day classes during the past three decades, the school has been asked many times, and for various reasons, by the State Department of Public Instruction to offer our facilities to provide, on full and part time basis, vocational courses for men and women of this community. This condition existed during the First World War, the depression, the recession, and prior to and following the Second World War.

An attempt is made here to outline briefly the opportunities offered since 1940 in a somewhat chronological order. In 1940 a National Defense program was initiated and we were called upon to assist in training men for highly skilled and semi-skilled jobs in industry. Pre-employment classes were held for men who had formerly been employed in some kind of mechanical work. They were trained to take specialized jobs that were available for defense workers. This was a thirty hour per week work schedule. Supplementary classes were formed for men, already employed, who wished to advance in their chosen field. This was an eighteen hour per week schedule. Students were selected from the rolls of W. P. A., N. Y. A., and Local Employment Service. After men were no longer available, women were trained for the production of war materials. Students attended classes in machine tool operation, electricity, welding, and blueprint reading. Again school was in session twenty-four hours a day with classes for the regular day, supplementary, pre-employment, and evening students. To aid in the foregoing program, the government gave the local district two lathes and a milling machine. In January, 1941, the Engineering and Management Defense Training program was started. This program was given in cooperation with Pennsylvania State College. Classes in this category were conducted in machine design engineering drawing, process engineering, time and motion study, mathematics and chemistry. In all National Defense courses 1,477 persons were enrolled and upon completion of required subjects 89 per cent were placed in defense jobs. Following the National Defense program, conference groups in safety training for supervisors and foremen were organized. This was a twenty hour program, ten sessions of two hours each. Conferences were held with one group from the Union Spring and Manufacturing Company and eight groups from the Aluminum Company of America.

In 1943, when N. Y. A. centers were discontinued, the district purchased the Shop Building on Stevenson Boulevard and with it, at no cost, acquired three lathes, two drill presses, seven electric welding machines, ten oxy-acetylene welding outfits, and some smaller tools. In 1944 the pattern shop, electric shop, and machine shop were moved to the newly acquired building. Shortly after the end of the Second World War, in 1945, distribution of war surplus began. Ken Hi benefitted from the general distribution of surplus goods on the basis of the use made by their equipment during the national emergency. Two lathes, a universal milling machine, an upright milling machine, a slotter, three drill presses, a metal band saw, two portable grinding machines, an air compressor and a quantity of electrical and welding material from general, state, and county distributions were received. In all cases, the city paid for hauling and crating only. Value of material thus received amounted to almost $40,000. It made possible the expansion of all shops for day and evening classes.

Veteran training to run concurrently with the regular Evening School was started in 1945 when the State Department of Public Instruction was given the responsibility of providing for vocational education of veterans under the "G. I. Bill of Rights," now known as "Public Law 679." Veterans working as apprentices were not only eligible, but required by terms of the act to have 144 hours instruction each year of their apprenticeship in courses related to their trade. Veterans taking on-the-job training (maximum of 4,000 hours) were required to take related training if they or the employer asked for it. Veterans who were not apprentices or whose occupation was not listed as on-the-job training could also avail themselves of the opportunity of taking related work by using their Certificate of Eligibility. Through a contract with the Veterans Administration, this related work is given to veterans at no cost to the district. Approximately 225 veterans have enrolled in welding, auto theory, electricity, patternmaking, machine shop work, blueprint reading, and mathematics.

In 1948 all related work and trade drafting were moved back to the Ridge Avenue building. Since 1944 two schedules are in operation. Half of the vocational students are in shop classes for one week, while the other half are in the classrooms. These groups alternate throughout the year.

Evening classes, previously mentioned have been operating every year since they were started by Dr. E. T. Chapman in 1924. These classes are in session six hours per week for twenty-four weeks. Courses given are fully accredited by the Pennsylvania Department of Public Instruction. Courses are available in machine shop practice, patternmaking, electricity, welding, auto theory, mathematics, blue print reading, and chemistry. In addition to the industrial courses mentioned above, it is possible to take courses in commercial, home economics, and high school subjects. Any course desired will be offered to students who are sixteen years of age or over if the demand is sufficient to warrant a class.

Trade extension classes for apprentices have been held in cooperation with the Aluminum Company of America at their plant in New Kensington since 1930. These classes are in the related field and every apprentice is required to be in class at least four hours (usually on company time) every week of the entire year. The subjects are well outlined and all apprentices must meet a definite assignment every six months. Subjects taught are shop mathematics, shop problems, and blueprint reading. Classroom grades are taken into consideration in rating each apprentice for advancement. Trade extension education is a service of the school which can be given in any industrial plant or organization providing there are enough persons to form a class.

Reading here of the activities in which vocational education has played an important role since 1915, one thinks of the humble beginning—tucked away in a corner of the High School building with a handful of students. Just as the city grew, as new industries sprung up, as new demands were made of the school's services, vocational education has expanded over the years to meet existing conditions. In many cases the school not only met the emergency, but went beyond its quota in giving to the young men and women of this community an opportunity to profit by the courses offered. A total of almost twelve thousand persons have been enrolled throughout the years 1915-1950.

Besides the curricular work, the recreational needs of vocational students have been expanded.

Through special funds the library, accessible to the vocational students who study in Room 303, was started in 1942 and now has 1500 books. Among these are the Edward Mazur Memorial Library and the Harold Gibson Library. The former was established by Mrs. Mary Mazur and Miss Veronica Mazur in memory of Edward Mazur, Class of 1940, son and brother, who lost his life in World War II. These books are for use in the technical work involved in vocational training and in the pursuit of hobbies of a technical nature. The Harold Gibson Library, donated by his mother and Mrs. Griesmmer, his aunt, was established primarily for reading enjoyment as it is almost entirely fiction.

Because of the many vocational boys in the service in 1941, the Vocational Board of Activities instituted the "V-News," a mimeographed sheet published eight times a year and covering all vocational activities. Between 1941 and 1948, one hundred twenty-five boys were on the mailing list.

The Vocational Honor Roll was unveiled on Thursday, April 19, 1945, by Mrs. Farneth, mother of five boys in service, four of whom were vocational graduates. This Honor Roll contains 497 names with sixteen gold stars.

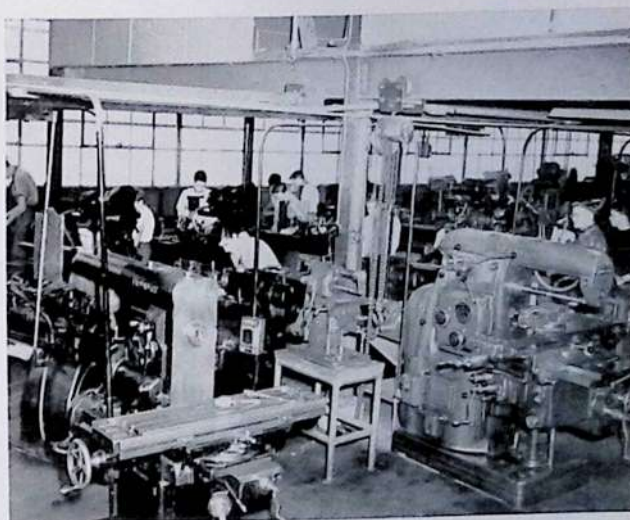

Other programs have included a number of dramatic skits and radio broadcasts, written by the students. The boys' choir, organized by Miss Emogene Whitacre, took an active part in many of these programs. For students who were interested in athletics a vocational basketball team was organized. It was entered in the Y.M.C.A. league for many years, averaging twenty games a year. All vocational boys are eligible for the High School teams and many have participated in football, baseball, basketball, and track.

Parnassus Joins Ken Hi

The fall of 1931 witnessed the union of the New Kensington Borough and the Parnassus Borough. Two high schools with a history of rivalry in the same community for a third of a century were brought together.

On May 20, 1930, the two boroughs voted to consolidate. Factors considered by the two districts anticipated those of the State Department of Public Instruction. Geographically and economically the two districts were constituted as a single community. The sites of the two original high school buildings were only a couple of blocks apart. The communities shared a common business district and worked together in the same plants. A savings could be effected as a result of eliminating overlapping functions of government. Educational facilities could be available for all students in the joint districts desiring it. Since the one area was largely residential and the other area contained the major industrial plants, all within a small radius, the community was in reality a functional unit.

Consolidation resulted in the formation of one of the largest third class districts in the state at that time. Of the two hundred seventeen third class districts in Pennsylvania only two had larger school populations. Only twenty-two of all first, second, and third class districts had larger school enrollments.

There are four gas ranges and two electric ranges, one electric refrigerator, complete electric automatic laundry, which includes an electric washer, dryer, and ironer. Small articles, very necessary in cooking, are also used by the students. Among these are automatic coffee pot, electric mixer, and electric toaster. The teaching is of a practical nature; the students work in family units on all projects.

After consolidation school board members of both boroughs met in combined groups until the terms of office ran out and then directors were elected from the united boroughs. Most of the teaching personnel from the Parnassus district became part of the New Kensington teaching staff. Consolidation was effected smoothly and efficiently with a minimum of friction.

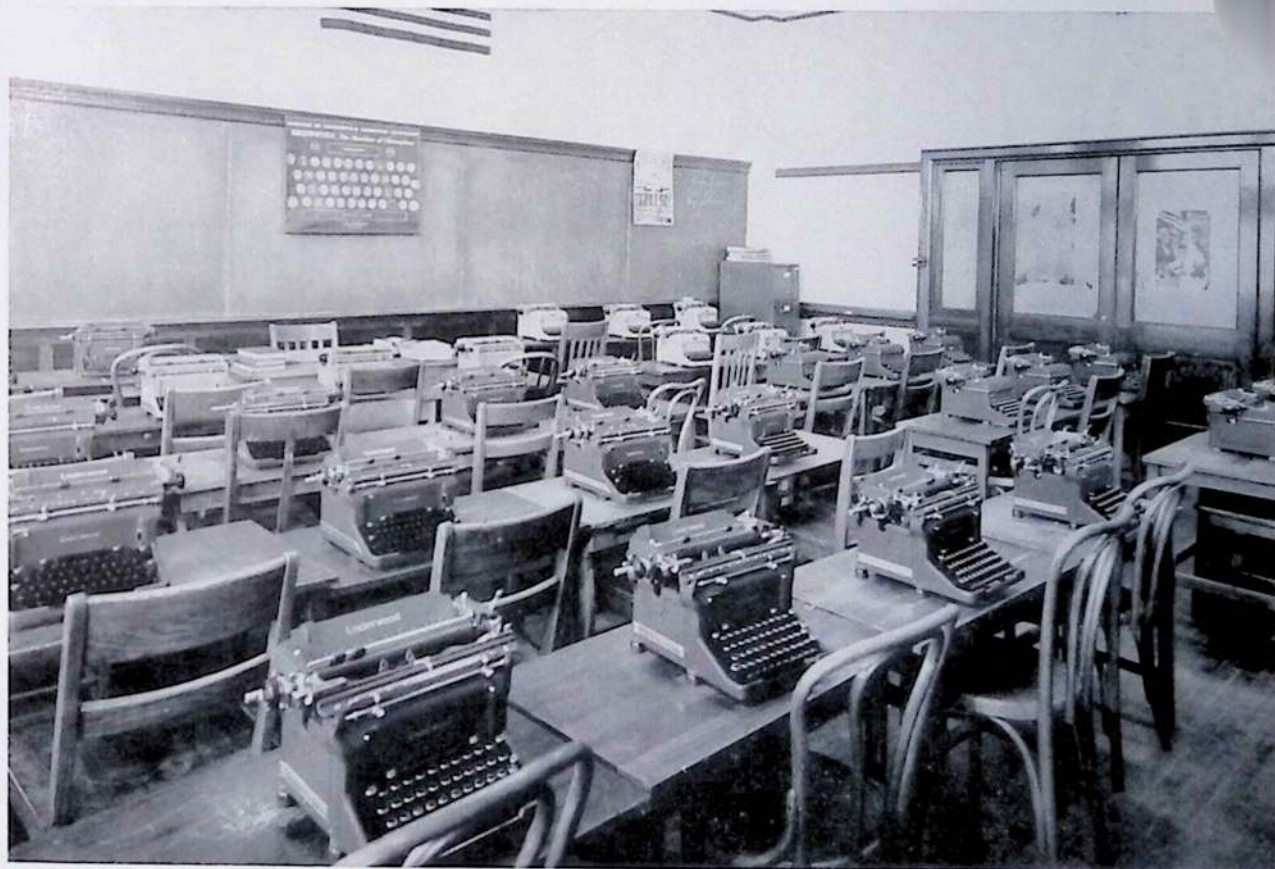

On November 8, 1932, the united community voted to change from the borough form of government to the city type. After eighteen years of operating as a single unit in government and education, during a major economic depression and a global war, there are none who would turn back the wheels of progress.

The last graduating class from Parnassus was in June, 1931. There were eighteen boys and thirty-one girls in the class. The total high school enrollment the last year was slightly less than three hundred students in the ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades.

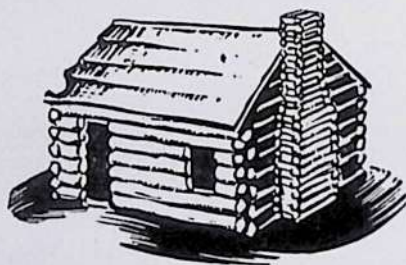

The enrollment of the New Kensington High School in 1930 was 1,525; in 1931, as a result of the inclusion of the Parnassus High School, it was 1,771. The Parnassus High School became the Main Street Junior High School.

It is good to know that two groups of high school students having traditions of athletic rivalry for so long a period of years could work and play together in a friendly and cooperative spirit under one roof. The rivalry between the two schools athletically and scholastically had at times been intense. Prior to consolidation, it was said, a bad feature of having two educational systems in one community was that the athletic rivalry between them took on the aspect of a family quarrel and was not healthy competition. In football New Kensington beat Parnassus 13 times, lost to Parnassus 5 times, and tied 3 games. The games were noted for fight, before, during, and after the games both on and off the field. Consolidation has without doubt resulted in a healthier community spirit.

The Parnassus High School had been founded in 1897 a few years before the New Kensington High School. Mr. Wilmer G. Dugan was the first principal, serving from 1897 to 1910 when he became Assistant Superintendent of the Westmoreland County Schools. There were five students graduated in the first class in 1898. Classes were held in the office of the original portion of the Fifth Avenue School building. During the years from 1897 to 1931, thirty-two classes, a total of more than 640 students, graduated from the Parnassus High School. Prior to the consolidation of the two districts, the Parnassus High School was under the direction of Mr. O. W. Johnson, now Supervisor of Elementary Education in the New Kensington School District.

Parnassus High School has served this community ably over a period of a third of a century. Its graduates have brought honor to the school and community in many fields of service. Since the graduates of the Parnassus High School are now certified from the New Kensington High School, it is with pride that a roster of the graduates is included within the pages of this book.

Activities Outside the Classroom

Life outside the classroom has been an important part of an education at Ken Hi. Extra-curricular activities have become full and varied as the curriculum has expanded to meet the needs of the times.

Although various organizations were formed during the early years of the high school, it was not until about 1911 that organizations of a definite character appeared. Most important of them were the two literary societies, the Sigma Psi and the Beta Sigma, formed by dividing the school into two divisions. Meetings were held every two weeks, one division taking charge of a meeting each time. Programs consisted of a debate, orations, essays, readings, recitations, character sketches, and historical talks.

The next year there was definite evidence that class spirit was developing. The senior class published a yearbook, instituting the school publications. To it the freshman class contributed its two best short stories and the sophomore and junior classes, their best essays. These were selected in creative writing contests conducted by the classes and judged by teachers and administrators of Vandergrift, Tarentum, and Parnassus High Schools. In 1913 the senior class was given ample opportunity to continue the yearbook but it lingered so long over the decision that the junior class assumed the obligation and published the "Juniclan."

The next year no class was interested in publications, but in 1915 a progressive group of seniors formed a "stock company" to publish a weekly newspaper. Officers were elected to manage the company and to act as an editorial board. Among the first business transactions was the conducting of a contest to secure a name for the paper. The first edition appeared on November 11, 1915, announcing the contest by six question marks forming the name plate and the following explanation just below it: "This paper does not have a name. Give it a name and secure a subscription for a year free." In the second edition there was a plea for a name, but the third edition carried the name, "Kentonian." The school newspaper has used that name throughout its twenty-nine years of publication.

Musical organizations, like the publications, were started while the high school was located in the Fourth Avenue building but became more active after the Ridge Avenue building was opened. The orchestra played every day for the dismissal of school. According to a "Kentonian" of October, 1916, the marching out of school was as important as school subjects. The article reads: "On Monday Burkart, Bates, and Blose, with Marks at the drums, will furnish the music for dismissals. It has seemed very flat without the orchestra, but the music bids fair to excel former years."

"Now for the marching. From hints dropped at the chapel exercises, marching, as well as other subjects, must be 75 per cent perfect by all who desire to leave the building with the school." Paramount in the activities of the glee club that year was the musical extravaganza, "Fi-Fi of the Toy Shop," produced by a cast of 125 students and faculty members in the high school auditorium on November 28. The scenes of the musical fantasy were laid amid the corners of the toy shop and the characters represented all the wonderful whims and faces found in modern Toyland. Besides operettas, minstrel shows, and revues, the choruses have presented excellent concerts. At first they were held at Christmas time but in the present programs there are also Easter and spring concerts. Many of the members of the choruses have taken part in county and Western Pennsylvania music festivals. In 1945 three Ken Hi singers won solo roles in the county contest.

On November 3, 1916, Ken Hi made history in still another field. The Students' Savings Bank was opened. The "Kentonian" recorded the event in the following article: "On Friday, the 3rd, the Students' Savings Bank opened its doors. There was quite a rush even though the students didn't quite understand how it was going to operate."

"The Board of Directors consists of Mr. B. F. Davis, Professor J. L. Powers, B. Empfield, Charles Baxter, Dale Armstrong, and Paul Carnahan. The Board appointed Tony Launcelot, cashier; Alvin Zimmerman, teller, and the Commercial Department under the direction of Miss Vivian Moorehead, bookkeeper."

"Mr. George Shiarella, of the First National Bank, was up on Tuesday evening last and directed the opening of the books. The bank books will be frequently inspected by men from the First National Bank and the Logan Trust Company."

The bank has continued to be an outstanding organization in Ken Hi. Dr. Harry McKeown, of the University of Pittsburgh, included a chapter on the bank in his book on extra-curricular activities and "Student Life," a National Honor Society publication, ran an article on it. During World War II the bank, as the center for the schools' sales of United States bonds and Defense Stamps, did $80,000 worth of government business. The average volume of business for a year is approximately $113,000.

During World War I the extra-curricular program had to be curtailed, but in the 1920's most of the organizations began to function again and new ones were formed. Perhaps the most outstanding of the latter was the Ken Hi band, organized about 1922 to play at football games. By 1924 Mrs. Pearl McClellan, the director, and John Wainer, the leader, had added a flag-bearer in the person of Clyde Pfeiffer. It was not until 1945 that a majorette corps of 36 girls was organized to augment the band, which then numbered 75. Mr. Frank Oliver was the director then, as now. In each of the past four years the band has appeared before 100,000 people. Each year, thanks to the Boosters Club, the band is sent to camp to prepare for the busy season.

Other organizations were related to the school subjects. Among them was an English Club, sponsored by Mr. Elmer Hickman, to produce plays in the school auditorium. It became inactive when Mr. Hickman left the school and remained so until 1927 when it was reorganized as the Barrymore Club. Eventually it became the National Thespians and now is functioning as the Dramatic Club. Then there were the Leaders Club, French Club, Newclid Club, Hi-Y, and Home Economics Club. In fact the extra-curricular program became so extensive that in 1924 the new principal, Mr. H. B. Weaver, suggested that a board be set up to control the extra-curricular activities. This board, known as the Board of Activities, held its first meeting on September 9, 1924, with two representatives from each of the three upper classes and representatives from the administration and faculty. Mr. Weaver presided and read the constitution. Then through a privilege in the constitution, Mr. J. A. Miller was named president. He remained in office until the vocational department was moved to the Fourth Avenue building. Mr. W. Lee Vorlage was appointed to succeed him. During Mr. Vorlage's term in office, the student representation on the board was increased.

The year 1931 stands out because of a unique club organized that year, the Washtonian Club, composed of seniors who earned sufficient money to take a trip to Washington, D. C. Miss Marie Walker and Mr. F. W. Lenox accompanied the group.

In 1934 the yearbook was instituted again but with a new name, "Taleoken," selected through a contest. The "Taleoken," depicting the school in picture and story, has always been a beautiful volume but the 1941 volume has the distinction of winning an All-American rating. The third publication, the "Handbook," was started in 1945. The motive of the handbook is service and it has been an unfailing aid to the students who use it as a guide and information bureau.

World War II added many temporary activities to school life. What most of the students will remember is the air raid drills when at the simultaneous blowing of the city's whistles and the ringing of the school bell, the students went rapidly to their rooms, got their wraps, and marched orderly to the places in the building considered safe from bombing planes. Then there were the numerous drives of the Victory Club, through which the school earned three flags—the Minute Man, the Rattlesnake, and a reproduction of the flag carried by the Westmoreland Militia at the battle of Bushy Run.

Although the majority of school activities are for and by the students, two, which began in the 1940's, are for the students, their parents, and their friends. One of these, Career Conference Night, held first in 1941 and now an annual event of American Education Week, gives the students and their parents an opportunity to meet the faculty and to discuss informally with experts in occupational fields and college representatives problems relating to employment and to attending schools of higher learning. Each year over five hundred persons have taken advantage of this service. The school broadcast over WKPA each Wednesday at 3:30 p. m., is the other activity planned with the students and community in mind. When the broadcasts were begun in 1943, the time was used to explain the curriculum and the extra-curricular program, but in recent years the programs have been varied, including roundtables, dramatizations, and musical numbers.

Besides the organizations discussed here, numerous clubs have been organized from time to time. These are active or inactive depending on the interests of the student body. A list of those active this year follows: Assembly Staff, Athletic Association, Band, Orchestra, Board of Activities, Boys' Leaders Club, Cheerleaders, Choir, College Club, Commercial Club, Distributive Education Club, Dramatic Club, Future Homemakers of America, Geography Club, German Club, Girls' Leaders Club, "Handbook" Staff, Hi-Y, Junior Town Meeting, "Kentonian" Staff, Key Club, Monitors, National Honor Society, Script and Score, Science Club, Junior Red Cross, Student Bank, "Taleoken" Staff, Tea Dance Orchestra, Tri-Hi-Y—Senior, and Tri-Hi-Y—Junior.

Athletic Expansion

Athletics at Ken Hi date back to about 1908. At that time the desire for some form of athletics was moving from the colleges to the high schools. The high schools were not ready to recognize this innovation and when the Campbell brothers, Fred Shields, and Dan McCarthy organized a football team and decided to play under the name of Ken Hi, Mr. Terrill, the superintendent of schools, called the boys into the office and informed them that the school would not recognize the newly organized team. The boys were able to hold the team together and the first Ken Hi-Parnassus football game was played. The game was called off because of Loxley Peebles, the Parnassus star (by star, I mean the only player who had a uniform.) Loxley chewed tobacco and during one of the scrimmages swallowed his chew. He was unable to continue so the game was called.

In 1909 the school authorities decided to recognize athletics and a regular schedule was formed. The coaching was assigned to Mr. Sweeney and practices consisted of running signals along side of the Fourth Avenue building. The highlight of that year was the game at Butler. The score was close as far as Ken Hi was concerned, but the school lost, 65-0. Some of the members of the 1910 team were Paul Hammond, who captained the team; Bill Schaffer, Herman Bonsall, Rolland Hammond, Hayden Luther, George Sibley, Phil Luffy, Neal Marshall, and Dr. Frank Pessolano.

During this period basketball was being played in the Y. M. C. A. and the games attracted the attention of most of the students. A regular team was organized in 1909 and played its games at the old Y. M. C. A. A basketball game was a real treat in those days and with a limited seating capacity, sometimes as many as fifty spectators would be on hand for a game. The gym was lighted with gas lights.

The Y. M. C. A. conducted a lecture course on the same nights as the basketball games were scheduled. The stamping of feet and yelling soon ended the use of the basketball floor for the high school team. Some members of the early teams were: Harry Klingensmith, Earl and Carl Campbell, Porter Laughlin.

The following year, 1910, was really the start of school recognition in sports. Larry Long, employed by the Aluminum Company, took over the duties of football coach. Mr. Dannels, the high school principal, made up the schedule and formed an athletic association. This team played most of the leading schools in Western Pennsylvania at that time. The games were played at the old Orchard Field along the river at Fifteenth Street, a cow pasture by day. However, on the days of the games, ropes, borrowed from the Fire Department, were stretched between trees to keep the spectators back. Generally they would follow the game up and down the field, and if it was an exciting game, everyone would surround the team. Rolland Hammond, Emil Steiner, John Sweet, Phil Luffy, and Francis Hammond were some of the players.

It was not, however, until the following year that the importance of high school football aroused the community, and it was in this year that the all important series between New Kensington and Parnassus really began. Fights, strikes, and general rioting generally preceded the games. The 1912 team borrowed blankets from Shaw's Livery Stable to wear and when they all gathered in a huddle before the game, the team smelled like a livery stable. It was in this year that the famous "water bucket" incident occurred. Stewart, the Parnassus full-back, got loose and was running down the field near the Ken Hi sideline. Either by accident or design, the water bucket got under his feet and he fell and lost a touchdown. This incident almost caused a civil war.

Jake Luffy coached in 1913 and 1914. The playing field was moved to the field across the street from the Aluminum Lab, to be closer to the present high school building which had just been completed.

In 1915 Berlin Empfield became high school principal and being interested in athletics, coached the football team. Games were played in the field across from the Aluminum Lab, and the athletic program was slowly enlarging.

The organization of the Allegheny-Kiski Valley League, of which New Kensington became a member, promoted athletics in the entire valley. Ken Hi went in for football, basketball, and track under the guidance of this organization. Many of the persons now well known in the town played on the athletic teams during this period. From Ken Hi there were Howard Shaner, Dr. John Yoder, Louis Springer, Grafton Sullivan, and Warren Shaner. From Parnassus there were Earl Walley, Harry Forst, John Hamilton, Dave Stewart, and John Acklin.

With the coming of the war, many members of the athletic teams enlisted or were drafted into the service. In 1917 there weren't enough boys in school to continue football and it was dropped for one year, with the exception of the game with Parnassus played at the old Wear-Ever Park.

In 1918 Carl Glock was appointed coach of football and basketball. The games were played at the Wear-Ever Park on Fourteenth Street. The present "401" was the gym and basketball court. In 1918 there was a rapid improvement in Ken Hi's athletic teams. It was during this period that the entire membership of the Allegheny-Kiski Valley League was absorbed by the W. P. I. A. L. Mr. Glock coached until 1921 when Jimmy McIntyre was appointed football coach and Clyde Armstrong was named basketball coach. Athletes of this period, who are still remembered, were Dick Criss, Dale Yohe, Merl Klinesmith, "Tanny" Klinesmith, John and Bill Moorhead, and Dave Hagerman. At Parnassus the Reverend Parks was coaching and after the war the rivalry between the schools started all over again. Alex Demio, Clyde Simpson, John Lagrossa and Herbert Forst were some of the boys who carried on for Parnassus.

In 1923 Dent Moon was elected coach of football and basketball and Ken Hi by this time was being recognized as a contender in the W. P. I. A. L. Parnassus, on the other hand, was also advancing its football program. "Mance" Gillis, "Huddy" Hudson, the present coach of Har-Brack, and many others played on the old Parnassus teams during this period. Gene Davis, Lloyd Wolfe, Wayne Harnish, Archie McSparrin, Louis Pessolano, Dan Sullivan, Smith McKee, George Abraham, "Babe" Kernan, Tom Tannas, and Joe DeSimone were all players on the football and basketball teams during Coach Moon's time. Coach Moon remained here until 1927.

Carl Glock was reappointed coach in that year, and during the following years Ken Hi had many outstanding teams and came into prominence as a basketball power in the W. P. I. A. L.

In 1927 the Allegheny-Kiski Valley Basketball Tournament was organized. This tournament became one of the most outstanding athletic events in the valley and contributed much to the quality and popularity of high school basketball.

The 1930 basketball team was the first Ken Hi team to win the W. P. I. A. L. title. This team, composed of "Whitey" Wilson, Bill Ames, Phil Laughlin, "Babe" Dayoub, and Don McCandless, thrilled the hundreds of spectators at the Pitt Stadium by coming from the rear in most of their games. They played Sharon at Grove City in the State playoff and were defeated.

In 1932 Ken Hi and Parnassus were consolidated. This increased the number of athletes and a more rounded program, including football, basketball, track, and baseball, was formed. The games were played at the old Parnassus field, now known as Herr Stadium.

In 1934 Ken Hi again won the W. P. I. A. L. Basketball Championship and with "Bud" Jeannette, Joe Ross, Andy Treziak, "Pink" Waugh, and Bob Wilson went on to the regional finals before being eliminated by South High, who won the State title.

In 1936 the football team tied with New Castle for the W. P. I. A. L. football championship. However, Ken Hi refused to play in the playoff as it was scheduled a month after the close of the regular schedule.

In 1938 Don Fletcher was appointed football coach and again football came into prominence. Ken Hi entered into an agreement with Arnold for the use of their stadium and all home games were played there. As the teams and schedules improved, the crowds increased until the Arnold stadium could not accommodate them.

With the advance of the football team to the front in the W. P. I. A. L. championship, the Board of Directors decided to build a modern stadium. Today Ken Hi Memorial Field is one of the outstanding fields in Western Pennsylvania. The track and tennis courts have given importance to these sports. Ken Hi has conducted league meets in track and tennis since the completion of the new field.

Under Coach Don Fletcher the football teams have been recognized throughout the country. Such greats as "Red" Huet, Andy Treziak, George Vasilopus, Willie Thrower, and Joe Veltri have placed Ken Hi at the top in league competition. Under Coach Fletcher the teams have won the W. P. I. A. L. Championship twice in eleven years and the runner-up place once.

In 1946 Joe Gibson was appointed basketball coach and served for three years. Ken Slosky was appointed in 1948 and in his first year won the sectional title.

Bob Chegwiddden has been the track coach since the renewal of that sport in 1946.

Reviewing the advancement and achievements of the athletics since the days of gaslights, one can say that this part of the educational system has contributed much to the school and community in sports and in leadership.

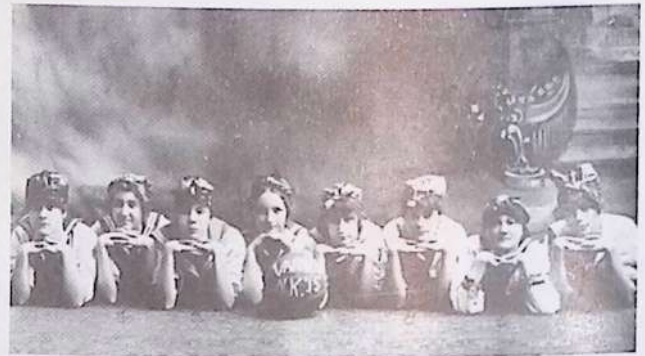

THE PLAYROOM was built for the girls in 1949. Numerous tournaments of shuffleboard, table tennis, ping-pong, and darts are held there.

BASEBALL

In 1923-24-25 baseball was played on an informal basis. Carl C. Glock was the coach and one of his brightest stars was Richard Goldberg. Goldberg played briefly with the Washington Senators in the American League, spent several seasons in the International League, and finally finished his professional career as a manager in a minor league.

In 1937 and 1938 baseball again was played on an informal basis. In 1937 the team won three games and lost three and in 1938 turned in a record of no wins and three defeats.

Ken Hi entered one of the sections of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League in 1939. Competition was keen as Ken Hi's record of one victory and seven defeats indicates. In 1940 the record was almost reversed as the team turned in a card of eight wins and two losses. This was a good enough record to win the sectional championship but the team lost its chance for the league championship when it dropped a tough 10 inning game, 3-2, in the first round of the playoffs. Charles France (deceased), Walter Farneth (deceased), Bob Hayes, Arnold Kuntz, Russell Myers, Todd Glock, and Edward Huet were star players. The record of the other years in the W. P. I. A. L. follows:

Years	Ken Hi Won	Ken Hi Lost	Sectional Standing	Coaches
1941	3	5	Third	Al Dunn
1942	3	5	Fourth	Al Dunn
1943	3	5	Fourth	Al Dunn

*1947	11	2	First	Al Dunn
1948	8	3	First	Al Dunn
1949	8	2	Second	Al Dunn

*The team won the sectional championship but was defeated in the second round of the playoff series.

The team won the sectional championship but was defeated in the semi-final round of the playoff series.

TRACK

In 1946 New Kensington High School officially opened a track season after fifteen years of inactivity in this oldest of all present day sports. A Ken Hi graduate, Robert Chegwid-den, is the coach. The record follows:

Years	Ken Hi Won	Ken Hi Lost
1947	1	5
1948	1	6
1949	4	4

In 1946 Ken Hi took sixth place in the Westmoreland County meet.

In 1948 Ken Hi took sixth place in the Westmoreland County meet and earned one point in the W. P. I. A. L. meet.

THE HIGH SCHOOL BAND IN 1938-39

Commencements

As the audience watches the Class of 1950 file slowly through the gate at Memorial Field in the spring, there may be a few present who see much that the average spectator does not see. That class is in reality preceded by a very long line of seniors led by three girls in long, frilly, white dresses and three boys in high, stiff collars. They are the seniors of fifty years ago on their way to exercises in the Reformed Church on Constitution Boulevard. The graduation of the present class climaxes a series of Commencement exercises in Ken Hi from 1901 to 1950.

The first class boasted six members who had completed a two-year course. The Class of 1905 with four members was graduated from a three-year course and the Class of 1909, also with four members, was the first four-year class. The Class of 1903 was the smallest class, having had only one member, while the Class of 1939 reached a high of four hundred twenty-five graduates.

The changes in the size of the classes were accompanied by other changes. The first class was graduated in the Reformed Church. The FACULTY, 1949-50 — Row one: Mathilda Milauskas, Secretary; Genevieve Olmer, Betty Wareham, Lucretia Boucher, dean of girls; H. B. Weaver, principal; Dr. E. T. Chapman, superintendent; J. A. Miller, assistant principal and vocational director; Dorothy Eiges, Rosemarie Pascaretta, Margaret Potter, Hilda Laub, Mary Ann Milberger, secretary. Row two: Ruth Fields, nurse; Alice Rorabaugh, Mary Gosetti, Mary Phillips, Jessie Moore, Ruth Griesemer, Marie Walker, Helen Terwilliger, Alice Klinke, M. Frazier, O. J. Remy, F. Oliver. next few held their exercises in Behm's Opera House, located up near the railroad switches. By 1906, Commencements were being held in the Y. M. C. A. building.

The Class of 1912 with fifteen members had to find larger accommodations and was graduated in the Columbus Theater. This theater was located about where Grant's Five and Ten now operates. The Class of 1913, having jumped to twenty-three graduates, received their diplomas in the Methodist Church on Ridge Avenue.

The new building on Ridge Avenue was sufficiently complete to allow the Class of 1914 to be the first to graduate therein. The auditorium and gymnasium in those days was what is now known as "401" study hall.

As the classes continued to grow in size, the Commencement exercises were moved in 1923 to the Liberty Theater. But on Monday, May 26, 1926, the new wing of the Ridge Avenue building was dedicated and the following Friday evening one hundred eleven members of the Class of 1926 received diplomas in the present auditorium.

The number of seniors increased steadily during the following years and jumped to two hundred forty-nine in 1932 with the consolidation of New Kensington and Parnassus. After reaching four hundred twenty-five graduates in 1939, Ken Hi began to feel the effects of World War II and the classes gradually fell off in numbers. Even then, the auditorium scarcely afforded sufficient space for the large crowds and when Memorial Field was completed, the Board of Directors moved Commencement Exercises to that ideal location. The Classes of '48 and '49 have already enjoyed that privilege.

A change of less importance perhaps, but of interest to many, was the elimination of the lovely white dresses and the stiff collars. The Class of 1906 appeared in caps and gowns. It seems that classes since that time have used them. For several years the caps and gowns were gray but eventually the black caps and gowns came into use. The only change in them has been the substitution in 1935 of red tassels for black. The girls now concentrate all the frills on their prom dresses and the boys achieve sartorial perfection without the stiff collars.

In the earlier classes all graduates made speeches. The lone graduate of 1903 had her Commencement combined with that of the eighth grade and she gave the valedictory. As the classes increased in size, the student speakers were reduced to salutatorian and valedictorian and an outside speaker made the Commencement address. Among these speakers have been noted educators and distinguished ministers. One of the earliest speakers was Chancellor S. B. McCormick, of the University of Pittsburgh. Others were Samuel L. Hamilton, of New York University; Dr. C. Ralston Smith, pastor of Pine Street Presbyterian Church, Harrisburg; Dr. Raymond Irving Lindquist, of The First Church, Orange, New Jersey; Dr. Ralph C. Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson College; and in 1949, Dr. Carl Winters, of the First Baptist Church, Oak Park, Illinois.

By 1932 student speakers were eliminated entirely. The first and second honor students were honored by announcement of this fact on the program and by having them sit with the speaker and Dr. Chapman on the platform. In recent years the Board of Activities has each year recognized the achievement of these two students by presenting each with ten dollars.

Scholarships and prizes have changed from time to time and by 1950 are probably more numerous than at any time since 1901. The University of Pittsburgh scholarship was first presented to a member of the Class of 1913. The alumni of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute have for many years awarded a medal to the senior boy who had the highest average for four years in mathematics and science. More recently the Bausch and Lomb medal has gone to the boy with the highest average for four years of science. The prizes for best boy and girl citizens were first given by Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wilson in 1926. When the Wilsons left New Kensington, the National Honor Society took over this project and has provided a ten dollar prize for each best citizens each year.

For a number of years it was customary for the president of the Board of Directors to present the diplomas. In more recent years that person has brought to the class greetings from the School Directors and the superintendent of schools has presented the diplomas. A still better arrangement was effected when the principal of the high school took over the reading of the names of the seniors, leaving the presentation of the diplomas to the superintendent.

Regardless of year or size of class, each Ken Hi alumnus probably remembers his class as the first to start a literary society or a year-book or the one which cut the juniors' hair or produced the best football team. For him that is the best class that ever came out of Ken Hi and that is as it should be. When May, 1950, rolls around, New Kensington can boast fifty of these "best" classes.

ALMA MATER

Arr. by Chas. Davis

Hail to thee our Al-ma Ma-ter, we with rev-rence sing to thee

The first system of musical notation for the song 'Alma Mater'. It consists of two staves. The top staff is in treble clef with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat) and a common time signature (C). The bottom staff is in bass clef with the same key signature and time signature. The lyrics 'Hail to thee our Al-ma Ma-ter, we with rev-rence sing to thee' are written below the staves.

Fine.

Of our love and our de-vot-ion, of our faith and loy-al-ty.

The second system of musical notation. It continues the melody from the first system. The lyrics 'Of our love and our de-vot-ion, of our faith and loy-al-ty.' are written below the staves.

We will cher-ish thy pro-tec-tion, we will strive to win thee

Cher-ish pro-tec-tion, strive win thee

The third system of musical notation. It continues the melody. The lyrics 'Cher-ish pro-tec-tion, strive win thee' are written below the staves. There are some red markings on the staves, possibly indicating a specific performance or edition.

fame; we will thirst for thy af-fec-tion, Ken-Hi, we will al-

The fourth system of musical notation. It continues the melody. The lyrics 'fame; we will thirst for thy af-fec-tion, Ken-Hi, we will al-' are written below the staves.

love thy name.

The fifth system of musical notation. It concludes the piece. The lyrics 'love thy name.' are written below the staves. The system ends with a double bar line.

Enrollment

In 1901 when the high school was organized, the total enrollment was twelve. Growth, as seen from the chart below, was steady. The large increase noticed between 1930 and 1932 can be attributed to the consolidation of the school districts of New Kensington and Parnassus and the decrease in 1948, to the changing from a four year high school to a senior high school registering only students of the tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades.

Non-resident pupils have always been admitted to Ken Hi. Districts served by the high school at various times are: Townships—Plum, Upper Burrell, Lower Burrell, East Deer, Frazer, West Deer, Harmar, Allegheny, Washington, Springdale, Harrison, Indiana, Gilpen, Franklin, Fawn, and Clinton. Boroughs—Cheswick, Tarentum, Arnold, Brackenridge, Hyde Park, and Springdale

Gold Star Honor Roll

Among the students and alumni who have brought honor to Ken Hi are the veterans of the two World Wars. In 1917 fifty-seven students and alumni answered the country's call to serve in the military forces. Their names are engraved on the bronze plaque presented to the school by the Class of 1919, which hangs in the Main Entrance to the building. Conspicuous on that plaque is the star before the name of Harold Gibson, the veteran who paid the supreme sacrifice. The list of gold stars of World War II is much longer. Sixty-seven students and alumni died in the service of our country. Since no permanent memorial has been erected to their memory, the military register kept by the National Honor Society during the war and the list of the Gold Star Mothers' Association were used in compiling the Gold Star Honor Roll which follows:

National Honor Society

In January, 1925, the Board of Activities announced the granting of a chapter of the National Honor Society to the New Kensington High School. This national organization had been formed in 1922 for the purpose of rewarding students with high scholastic achievements.

Student candidates must rank in the upper fourth of their class scholastically and be outstanding in service, leadership and character. Fifteen per cent of the senior class are eligible. Since its organization, 1,013 students have been taken into the chapter and membership is considered the highest honor in the high school.

Prior to the consolidation of the school districts of New Kensington and Parnassus, Parnassus High School had been granted a chapter in the National Honor Society.
